PRIVACY STATEMENT

The Tri-State Seminar, LLC respects the privacy of all individuals and companies who visit our website and social media sites, access and use our services, and register for our seminars. This privacy policy is intended to demonstrate our firm commitment to protecting the privacy of our members, our volunteers, our business partners and our visitors. This policy explains what type of information is collected by the Tri-State Seminar, LLC (Tri-State) and how this information is used.

INFORMATION COLLECTION

Website Visitor

When you visit our website, a limited amount of passive information is collected to help improve the content, design and functionality of the site and server. This information is not personally identifiable by the individual user and is not shared with third parties. Information may include, but is not limited to, the following: internet address of the visitor (IP and/or URL), time of access, browser type, and web pages visited.

Attendee / Exhibitor / Speaker

Visitors who register for the seminar as an attendee, exhibitor, or speaker, or who make inquiries for additional information regarding the seminar or services provided by Tri-State, will voluntarily provide us with contact information such as a name and email or mailing address. This information may be used for specific and limited purposes such as alerts about seminar activities, program changes or distribution of our pre- and post-seminar publications. If you do not wish to receive our notifications, you may “opt out” at the time of registration by checking the appropriate box or at any time by sending an email to registration@tristateseminar.com.

Credit Cards

Visitors who register for the seminar, either as an attendee or an exhibitor, may use a credit card to pay their registration and associated fee(s). Credit card numbers and other information used to complete a financial transaction are submitted in secure an encrypted form through Authorize.net, a payment gateway service provider allowing merchants to accept credit card and electronic check payments through their Web site and over an IP connection.

Cookies

The Tri-State website uses records known as “cookies” to enhance your website experience and help us provide better services. The cookie is sent to your browser for the purpose of identifying you and your browsing preferences and allows us to provide you with the information and features in which you are most interested. You can accept or reject cookies by selecting the appropriate features in your browser settings.

PRIVACY & CONSENT

Data Privacy

Tri-State does not provide, trade, rent or sell any of your personally identifiable information collected through the website to other organizations, companies, or individuals. This does not include trusted third parties who assist in operating our website, conducting our business, or providing service to you, so long as those parties agree to keep this information confidential. We may also release your information when compelled to appropriately comply with the law, enforce our site policies, or protect ours or others rights, property or safety. However, non-personally identifiable visitor information may be provided to other parties for marketing, advertising, or other uses.

Acceptance of the Terms and Conditions

This site contains various types of information relating to the Tri-State Seminar, LLC in the form of text, graphics, news, reports, and other materials (tangible or intangible) and collects personally identifiable and non-identifiable information. By accessing, browsing and/or using this site, you acknowledge that you have read, understood and consent to the conditions of this Privacy Policy.

AMENDMENTS

Amendments

We reserve the right, at our discretion, to change, modify, add or remove any or all portions of these terms at any time by posting the amendment terms on our site. Your continued use of the site following the posting of changes to these terms will constitute your agreement to those changes.
