

THE SECRETARY GENERAL
--
VIDEO MESSAGE FOR EARTH HOUR 2021
27 March 2021

We need to make peace with nature.

Without nature's help, we cannot thrive or even survive on this planet Earth.

Climate disruption, biodiversity loss and pollution threaten lives, jobs and health.

It's time to re-evaluate and reset our relationship with nature.

2021 is a year to change course.

Solutions are available, affordable, practical and realistic.

We can provide renewable energy and sustainable food systems for all.

We can reduce emissions and use nature-based solutions to help us build a more resilient, carbon-neutral world.

We all must do our part to safeguard our planet.

Together, we can build a brighter and more prosperous future.

The United Nations is proud to join in the global effort to mark Earth Hour.

It's a reminder that small actions can make a big difference.

So, join me and people everywhere by switching off your lights for an hour on Saturday March 27th at 8:30 p.m., your local time.

In this 'make-or-break' year, let your actions and voices send a clear message to leaders everywhere: now is the time to be bold and ambitious.

Let's show the world that we are determined to protect the one home we all share.
